

CIA Accused Of Violating Man's Rights

United Press

Rep. Hugh J. Addonizio yesterday said he understood the Central Intelligence Agency had fired one of its employees "because he married an Irish immigrant."

Addonizio identified the employee as Juan J. Ryan of South Orange, N. J. He said Ryan was notified by the spy agency that "his services were no longer needed" and "would be terminated in 90 days."

"We understand," the New Jersey Democrat added, "that the sole reason is that his wife is not a United States citizen."

Ryan joined the CIA last August under the junior officer training program. He was married about a month ago to an Irish immigrant.

Addonizio told the United Press he understood the CIA made a security check on Mrs. Ryan's background before the marriage and gave its approval.

Addonizio said he "took the matter up" with CIA but received no answer yet. He said he also informed the House Armed Services Committee, which has congressional jurisdiction over CIA.
